Princeton's Advanage in Weight of Line to Force Use of Passes

ITHACANS TO EXHIBIT MANY CAPABLE BACKS

By HEEBERY S. ALLAN As the military experts say of the hazt war to and war until the one after that, the annual gridiron battle between Cornell and Princeton at Ithaca tomorrow probably will be fought primarily in the air. According to the latest communiques from the Cayuga front, where the rival forces were awaiting the call to action today, both teams will resort to aerial mansuvers.

exigencies of the situation. Cernell has a bountiful supply of swift, shusive backs and a line that is worth its weight in defensive skill. But, inasmuch as the forwards average fifteen pounds less than their opments, their offensive value will be heavily discounted. They will be severely handicapped by lack of heft in their efforts to make breaches in the Princeton wall.

The Tigers, on the other hand, have . Ifne capable of punching holes in the Red barrier but are comparatively poor in the man-power to take advantage of the openings. So the net reault of these counterbalancing assets and liabilities is apt to be zero.

Cornell Team Faster

Speed and hair-trigger timing, of course, have been known to offset infuriority in weight, and Cornell appears to posses both in greater measure than Princeton, But the Orange and Black eleven has such a preponderance in poundage of a fairly mobile and siers kind that the Ithscans are not likely to make much headway against it, despite their fleetness and Purple Robe. precision.

Paced, therefore, with a strong probability that their running-attacks will Girls. prove equally ineffectual, these timenoted foes are prepared to play open football to the hilt. Passing seems destined to be the chief reliance of both teams as a scoring weapon, and lime-bucking to be used only as a Jack Biener, Dixle Dan, Colonel Bob, means of gaining strategical positions.

Cooper Doubtful Starter

If Jack Cooper, the triple-threat back been unable to take part in snough to play tomorrow, the Ithscans should have the better of the spectacular overhead dust expected to dehe would have been a regular in last year's backfield, one of the finest in the Bast, if his status as a transfer Gibby's Choice. Prince Mexican, Jusfrom Lafsyette had not made him in-

In case the bug that has kept Cooper out of action to date continues to plague him, Gil Dobie will not want for capable substitutes. Heddon, who made a deep impression against Richmond last Saturday in his first official appearance in a Cornell uniform by the manner in which he snared passes and hit the line, probably will get the call in that contingency, Viviano, Kline and Perraro are slated for the other starting assignments, with the last named doing cides to employ the veteran Stevens in

Cornell has so many first-class reserve backs as to constitute an embar-Smith, Grant and Beyers head, but do not exhaust, the list, All of them will pur, Primlin, Frances Cooper. make their presense fels before darkness actiles upon Schoelikopf Stadium

MORIGHES INLET STILL OPEN—Hisers who may be considering a tramp along the Great Houth Beach of Long Island, from Fire Island east, will be interested to know, according to information recently received from J. S. Tietcher, in the office of the Fourth District, United States Coast guard, Ray Shore, L. I., that the inlet which was cut in the heach sear the Morighes Coast Gaard station by a great storm in May, 1931, is still open and quite impassable by wading. The township is dredging it in an attempt to make it permanent. This breaks the continuity of the route. We are also informed that the bridge at Smith's Point has now quite disappeared an that one would have in chance finding a boat to get back to the main island there. Whether the Morichus inlet will remain open permanently is a question. Most such inlets on the Great South Beach have eventually closed up, through the affect of the westward flawing idial currents, but where they have remained have caused an extension of the eastern shore to overlap the western as at the Fire Island inlet and Long Beach.
